Ten Chinamen were now brought up charged by Mr. Inspector Ose Silva with selling liquor without a license from various boats in the harbour. Mr. Ose Silva sent out several detectives in plain clother into the harbour in consequence of many complaints he had latterly received from masters of ship. Two men were it these different boats and it appears that many men of this character are in the babit of plying anlling samphon and other liquore to the sailors. in several cases the different prisoners attempted o throw battles into the sen in many instances | they succeeded in two or three they were seized present instance, on account of the excitement before they had time to do so, and the bottles were which the Inpanese officers declared prevailed in court in evidence against them. In my desnatch of the 17th instant I reported o your Lordship the progress made up to that date in the joint negotiations of the Representatives of the four allied Powers relative to the compensations which our Governments desired to accent from that of the Treason in return for twothirds of the indemnity due under the Convention of the 22nd Outober, 1864. I then stated that the result of there negotiations was still uppertain, and dependent upon the success of the efforts of the Tycoon to obtain the sanction of the Mi-

On the night of the 19th a report reached His. on that offnics had taken an unfavourable turn at Kloto, and that two of the Tyco m's Ministers and principal supporters of his foreign police Ahe Bungo no Kami and Matemai Ideu no Kami had been dismissed by the Mikado. I order to satisfy ourselves of the accuracy of this report, I sent Mr. von Siebold the next morning to Ganna is the company with M. Cachon, deputed by M. Roches for the same purpose. Objections had been raised to our officers penetrating into the city on the three previous accasions on which they had proceeded towards Osaca; and the fort at the entranca of the river, or a house selected on the nutskirts of the town, formed the place of meeting. On the afternoon of that day, a steamer arrived from Osaga bringing down Matadaira Hoki no Kami, Yumakuchi Suruga no Kami, with other subordinate officers. and interviews were at once held with the Representatives. Hoki no Kami announced to us that the consent of the Mikado had been given to the Treaties. . I have constantly kent before the Japanese Ministers the fact that under the Locdon Agreement Her Majesty's Government could at any time demand access to Hiogo, and the other places now temporarily closed on the ground of the non-fulfilment of the conditions upon which the opening had been postponed. I have also been most particular in assuring them that no additional delay in the execution of the Treaty in this respect will be consented to, and, as under any oircumstances, therefore, the onening of these places must occur within two years from this date, lurged on their consideration the saving they would effect, of no less than 2,000,000 dollars, i they chose to anticipate the time named in the London Agreement by two years, or even, as was willing to say, eighteen months ... The indemnity, Hoki no Kami said, they were quite prepared to pay. It would severely tax their resources, but they decidedly preferred to meet this obligation, rather than consent at once to the opening of Hiogo and Osaca. In my despatch of the 17th instant I reported your Lordship the proge to made up to that te in the joint necetiations of the Representaes of the four allied Powers relative to the mpensations which our Governments desired to cent from that of the Tycoon in return for twoirds of the judemnity due under the Convention the 22nd October, 1864. I then stated that e result of these negotiations was still uncerin, and dependent upon the aucoems of the efforts the Tycoca to obtain the sanction of the Miuln to the Treaties. On the night of the 19th a report reached His. , that offsice had taken an unlayourable turn Kioto, and that two of the Tycoen's Ministera nd principal supporters of his foreign policy. be Bango no Kami and Natsmai Idea no Kami ad been dismissed by the Mikado. I order to tisfy ourselves of the accuracy of this report. I ont Mr. von Siebold he next morning to Ossos. the company with M. Cachon, deputed by M. oches for the same purpose. Objections had been sized to our officers penetrating into the city on three previous occasions on which they had roceeded towards Useen; and the fort at the enrance of the river, or a house selected on the alakirts of the town, formed the place of meeting. hese objections were most strongly urged in the resent instance, on account of the excitement high the Japanese officers declared prevailed broughout the town. These statements received me confirmation from certain occurrences that het Mr. von Siebold's notice. He observed a anaiderable movement of armed boats on the iver, and that the guards detached for the foreign leitors greatly exceeded the number appointed on revious occasions, and were not at their ease or isposed to be communicative. These notes, which laform the foreign Representatives that Abd were despatched on the morning of the 22nd intant were delivered to the Tyccon at Kinto early n the following day. This letter also reminded the Tycoon that the 14th instant would form the last of the ten days we had agreed to wait at Hingu for the reply o his Ministers to our proposals. On the afternoon of that day, a steamer arrived rom Osaca bringing down Untedaira Hoki no Kami, Yumakuchi Saruga no Kami, with other subordinate officers, and interviews were at once held with the Representatives. - Hoki no Kami announced to us that the consent of the Mikado had been given to the Treatier. I have constantly kept before the Japanese Ministers the fact that under the London Agree-nent Her Majesty's Government could at any time demand access to Hiogo, and the other places now temporarily closed on the ground of the constalliment of the conditions upon which the opening had been postponed. I have also been nost particular in assuring them that no additional delay in the execution of the Treaty in this espect will be consented to, and, as under any circumstances, therefore, the opening of these places must occur within two years from this date, urged on their consideration the saving they would effect, of no loss than 2,000,000 dollars, i they chose to unticipate the time named in the Lundon Agreement by two years, or even, as I was willing to say, eighteen months. The indomnity, Hoki no Kami said, they were quite prepared to pay. It would severely tax their resources, but they decidedly preferred to meet this obligation, rather than consent at once to the opening of Hiogo and Osaca. He assured as that the Treasury bad already issued the second instalment, which became due according to their calculation in the 9th Japanese month (which expired on the 18th ultime), and that the Representatives would find this sum waiting delivery at Yeddo. Ponctuality in the discharge of the remaining instalments would not be neglected. Proceeding to the consideration of the revision of the Tariff. Host, no Kami expressed the assent of the Tycoon's Government to this proposal on the general basis of a per cent., and informed the Representatives that Mideuno Idsumi no Kami, member of the Gorogio, had been instructed to enter on the neg kintion of this question at In the course of the interview, the Mikado's decree approving the Trestien was produced by Hoki no Kami. The terms in which this should be communicated to the Representatives, and also made public throughout the country, were determined after some discussion, and on the morning if the 25th instant the despatch and decree of the Mikado, of which I have the honour to incluse translations, were received by each of the Repregentatives. The receipt of this despatch brought the nego. tiation to a close. The results attained are, the ratification or approval of the Treaties by the Mikado; an agreement to revise the tariff, and an engagement that the indemmity due under the Convention of October 1864 shull be punctodly disharged. The terms in which the Japanese Ministers declare their choice of this latter condition in place of the immediate opening of Tiago, furnish a fresh guarantee for the eventual fufilment of the London Agreement, either at the time originally stipulated, or earlier, should Your Lordship will be satisfied, I trust, that in respect to the opening of Hiogo and Osuca, I made every effort in my power to induce the circumstances permit. Japanese Ministers to agree to an arrangement that would have met the views of Her Majesty's Government. But the choice between the payment of the indemnity and the opening of these places rested with the Treson's Government, and they never evinced the least hesitation as to the election they have made. It, is to be hoped, that the ratification of the Treation by the Mikado will greatly facilitate the adoption of improved opinions as to foreigners and their trade. It completes the valididity of our position, and thus detrives the Daimies of the principal present they have bitherto had for assailing the Tycoon and the foreigners he has admitted into the country. If they continue their contest with the former it must take other grounds. and the latter will no langer furnish the ostensible cause of contention. As a measure, therefore, which is calculated to remove or abate an hostility which would probably have defeated every effort to extend our trade at new parts, the Mikado s ratification of the Treaties will prove. I trust, a far more valuable concession than immediate admission to a port, the opening of which cannot, under Treaty and express agreement, be deferred for more than two years from this dute. It must be borne in mind that the Tyccon in signing the Trenties without the approval of the Mikado took upon himself, at the event has proved, greater responsibilites then he could perform. My predacessors had therefore clearly seen, as is well known to your Lordship, that the union of the Mikado with the Tycoon on the foreign question was essential to the necurity of the relations hased upon those Treaties, and that unless union were at once effects d. no extension of present privileges could be obtained through the "ycoon's authority alone, and probably other and more serious embarrassments might ensue. In reporting that this important advantage has now been accured. I ain very sensible, my Lord, that is would be presumptuous in me to lay claim to any other credit than that of not neglettiong an opportunity of completing, in co-operation with my collengues, the work to which they and my presects ore had so long, devoted themselves, and which had been signally advanced by the affair of Shimonasaki: That blow, however, proved insufficient in itself alone to gain the end that is now attained. It will be in the memory of your Lordship that after Choshiu's batteries were destroyed. Abe Bungo no Kami was sent Ly the Tycoon to Kioto, at the instance of the the Representatives, to move the Mikado to give his annotion to the Trenties. The opposition, however, was still too strong to allow of these representations being effectual. On this consion, however, the presence of the Tyonon himself at Kinto, attended by his Ministers and a considerable force, furnished a more favourable

MAP OF THE SUN-ON DISTRICT. ARTIES are referred to the M. S. circulated. The intention is to have it engraved in London, provided a sufficient number of copies to pay the expense of publication are subcopy, and it is estimated that it will require a subscription list of 120 conject to liquidate the outlay of engraving, &c. Any surplus which may be left will be devoted to Missiovery purposes. Subscriptions are hereby solicited.

The scope of this Map embraces an area of bout Forty F.ve miles from North to South, and about Sixty miles from East to West-that is to say the District of Sun on whereof Nam-tao, is the departmental town. It is within the disrict of Sun-on that Hongkong and its dependenies stood prior to their easion, and the whole Coast line for many miles adjacent is under the urisdiction of the Mandatin at Nam-tac. The Map is the result of four years' labor, and is ounde entirely from the personal abservations of the nuther. The dangers, the difficulties, and the hardships which the work has invulved, have been very great. The district is excessively mountaineus and as occular demonstration bad exclusively in all cases to be relied on, by reason atigue attending travel has been no light matter. The villagers entertain the idea that their mountains contain nuriferous deposits, and are very Jealnus of foreigners examining them. The consequence is that there is much difficulty in proouring the services of guides, and still more diffioulty in obtaining correct information on any point. In fact the idea above alluded to proves formation, and excites resistance to the progress of the traveller, besides occating great parsonal

Under these discumptances this blue has been produced, and it has been suggested to the anthor that it is a pity the result of so much labor. langer, and difficulty, should in these days of ordgress, he condealed from the world. Science. Religion and Commerce are now ellied in the yest work of the dissemination of knowledge and of Western Civilieation, and it cannot be doubted that Geography is the proneer of the movement. But in a local and a directly utilitarian point of view, the author is encouraged to believe that his work should not be placed as a capille under a bushel. This weakthy and most important Colony stands in the midst of the Sun-on District, and it seems to betoken a feeling in rear of the age, that the topography of the immediate neighbourhood should be a matter of perfect indifference. To the naturalist, the traveller, the sportsman, and the Missionary, the information should be accept able to say nothing of its political value. Besides, for police purposes in dealing with the all prevailing evil of piracy, when the subtlety of the Mandarin is considered, the author cannot doubt the value of his work to the British authorities. He therefore calls attention to his Map, and so-

•	More about Florence.  A lafty hedge, completely screening off the road from that plantation of trees and sbrubs, a. osr-•:	riage way about which, who two vehicles are abress, a third our bot just pass, two low hodges and between them a broad footpath class upon the Arno's brink—such is the chief promenade in
•	Florence, where, when wenther permits, native and foreign society assiduously congregate, in carriages, on foot, and a few on borseback. The ·;	display of vehicles and horseflesh is not very hit- limit, neither is the promenade of itself particu- larly attractive, although the force of custom conferes to it the dwellers in Florence, to the negleat of the innumerable plansant rides and walks. through charming country lanes and over piotu- resque broken ground, with beautiful views at every turn, by which this capital is surrounded. In some cities this attre ment to one promenade immediately outside the gates is intelligible enough; the dreary sands of Brandenburg offer little templation to the Berlinese to extend their walks and drives beyond the Thiergarten and at Madrid, if you guit the Prade and Retire, you find your-
. ·	tal, on the contrary, you may issue at any gat- sure of pleasant strolling ground, but, following in the rut of fashion, the public remain faithful to the straight monotonous drive in the Cascine, only oc- casionally extending their excursions beyond it to the further and prettier part of those pleasure-·	grounds which stretch to a counte of miles from the lown. The saual limit is the Piazzone, the name given to an open space just he youd the road above described, and where it is the custom for narringes.
	to draw up, often in very large numbers, on a fine a ring afternoon, for purposes of gessip and flixta- tion, and to listen to a hand of music. People naturally get weary of driving up and down the same narrow uninteresting road, and so they assemble on the Pinzzone. Young men on foot and haras-back ramble about maying visits at carriage doors, and a host of the celebrated Florentine flower girls importunately press upon you their bouguets. Here one may be said to have Florentine society.
·. ·.	spread before him as on a map arranged as on a review ground for inspection, and as soon as a moderate knowledge of the place and people has been acquired, some curious observations may be made. Here you have the pure and the impure, the extra correct and the und niably improper, comely matrons and fast young ladies from the United Kingdom, loose fish from the sunny South, fashionables from Nuscovy, and stragglers from Paris, Transatlantic belies, old residents, and tresh importations. Here is the diplomatic division, parked, like any other great guns, in a corner of its own. Here are the ambasandors from Bars taris and Patagonia, the special envoy from the .	land of the Little Endians, the great plenipoten- tiary from Laputs, stately ambassadresses in ba- reaches and slim accretaries in gigs. Here are the representatives of republica and agents of autocrats, bright stars from enlightened despotisms, and minor luminaries from petty Powers—the minor luminaries not always the least convinced. of the personal distinction derived from important functions. The society of Florence may be compared to a set of circles overlapping each other by
- ··.	larger or smaller ares, so as to produce a parital blending, a limited amalgamation. There are talian circles and English, American sets and Prossian, but every circle out set may be enid to have its boundary more or less en- croached upon by some other, and it would be impossible to establish distinct lines of separation. The conversion of Florence into a capital has put society, as it previously existed, somewhat out of joint. New elements have been introduced, fresh aspirations originated. The standard of fashion and even of respectability has been altered; the land- marks have been displaced, causing almost as much confusion as would have been occasioned by a ge- neral movement of milestones on an English high road in the old coaching days. Some who once assumed to I ad the van have now fallen into the rear, eclipsed by later arrivals and damaged by their own imperfections. Others, who think they have pretensions to rise, less sight of former cherished associates. There is some heartburning and not a little manual.
: :	the first of this new and very cora coite society can claim their merit of consistency. Occasionally we are reminded of the old saying that one man may steel a horse while another must not look through the stable window, and not always is it possible to explain the distinctions made in cases where there -	is little difference. Florence had long the reputa- tion of being a favourite resort of the higher class of demi-monde from various countries, of discretes and bewitched widows, and of widows who, like Lidy Tartuffe, might have some difficulty in establishing the exact date of their wedding; also of plausible male adventurers, gentlemanly gampead to be derived from their wits. It was thought that the conversion of Plorence into a great capital, ,	and the social checks introduced by a Court, or, at least, by an extensive and influential official and diplomatic circle, would clear away much of that undesimble section of society, and possibly such has been the case. With some it is a question of finnings; the poorer must refreat, but for the wealthy and pleasure-loving. Florence has gained in at: :	traction. Some of the puzzling inconsistencies of servable are to be explained only by the reflection that society is an authorst which while often deciding justly, is liable to strange vaguries and in detail without incurring the suspicion of per- sonality. Some of the anomalies above hinted at are difficult to reconcile; perhaps they will correct themselves in time. Hitherto a great deal of talk and the well-meant efforts of certain leaders of society have not had all the effect that might be
 - - :	desired. What is much wanted is the moral con- trol of a Court, with a lady at its head. Here there is no virtuous Queen or graceful Empress to s can example of purity and good taste, or to enforce strict decorum. Virtually there is no Court. Victor Emmanuel's tastes are not courtly; be hates pomps and ceremonies and receptions and balls, and to him a crowded assembly is a wearisome restraint, and a het room an infernal region. It is well known how the southered the ceremony-musters and chamber-bins on the night of the ball given at the Pisti, when the King and Queen of Purtugal were here, driving them nearly through the Palace windows.
· · · . 	by an explosion of indignation at their having overheated the State apartments. Accustomed to hard exercise and to the open air, he suffers severely from hot rooms, and will sometimes, on escaping from them at a late hour of the night, jump into a special train and dart off through the darkness in quest of cool air and his ease. No small portion of His Majesty's time is passed on the railway; sourcely a week goes by without change of place, but Florence, Turin, some of his Picdmontose country seats, and his villa at San Reserve are his chief residences and resorts. No- body here speaks otherwise than kindly and well of the King, but even if he were less devoted to field sports, and less averse to the restraints of a Court, it might be difficult for him; in his bachelor's house, without wife, daughter, or sister to do its bonours, to contribute much to clevate and re-
. -:	galate Florentine society, or to place the new Italian metropolis at once upon a level with the more brilliant of the European capitals.—Timer Correspondent.
